4 Please note, in this connection, what should be done when a patient is fit to be discharged but the guardian refuses to take custody of the patient. I was present at a meeting of the Board of Visitors some day during the first week of this month and saw several such cases. Two were particularly bad cases — one that of a man who has a brother in good circumstances and another of a woman who has husband, son and daughter — in both cases the relatives refuse to have anything to do with the poor patients. Is there no way of compelling them — Since if compulsion is necessary — to do their duty

Under the law in force, a lunatic can be discharged in the following cases:-

(1) By an order in writing of the visitors (three at least one being a medical officer) unless the person is a Criminal lunatic.

(2) On the application of the person at whose instance a reception order was made.

(3) On the application of any relative of the lunatic, and (4) If subsequent to reception, on inquisition, a person is ~~not~~ found to be of not of unsound mind.

The case in question falls if at all, under (1) & not the others. From the records, it appears, that the visitors ordered a discharge in 1924. It is not apparent why the patient was not discharged then alone & whether the order was a Conditional one, as a later order - viz - that the person may be detained till some relative comes forward to take charge of her - seems to indicate. It is doubtful whether the visitors can make such a Conditional order. The effect - yet - is however, clear. The order is subject to a Condition & may not be carried out till the Condition is satisfied. As matters stand the person may not be discharged. If the visitors abrogate the condition then the

From the records received from the D. M. it appears that the lunatic has a father, named M. R. Srinivasa Iyengar, a retired officer of the Mysore Govt, drawing a pension of Rs. 75— the elder brother, and two brothers in law. Of these the father seems to be the person legally bound to maintain him for purposes of Section 59. The Law Secy. may perhaps be consulted on this point. If this is correct the expenses are recoverable from him. The District Court will have to be moved for an order for the payment of the Cost according to Section 59.

From the records it appears that the whereabouts of this gentleman could not be traced by the police. Being a Government pensioner, it is hardly credible that he could not be traced. Once he is traced, and it is found that he is not in a position to pay, his account cannot be written off as recommended by the D.M. The D.M. will, if approved be asked to make further enquiries

Re. Mis. 66 of 1925-26/Exn:87 of 26-27(District Magistrate, District VERSUS Gouse Khan) on the fileof this Court, in the matter of one Ghous Mohideen, a lunatic.

The estate of the said Ghous Mohideen, which is now sought to be sold for arrears of charges of maintenance incurred on behalf of Ghous Mohedeen at the Mental Hospital, Bangalore, is valued at Rs 50/- only, whereas the amount due to Government till December 1926 amounts to Rs 313-6/-. The lunatic is reported to have no other estate.

Moreover the lunatic has three minor children, who are under the protection of his divided brotner Zianalabuddin, and the income from the estate is hardly sufficient even to meet their expenditure.

No doubt the order in the Miscellaneous case, directs that the amount of maintenance is a charge on the land and may be recovered by the sale of the land. But as the value of the land Rs 50/- only and quite insufficient to meet the decree amount and as his three minor children also depend upon the said estate, I feel that it is not equitable to sell the garden.

Under the circumstances, I have the honour to request you to move the Government to bear the charges of the lunatic.

From the report of the District Magistrate, it is evident that the lunatic Haffizulla Khan was admitted into the Asylum at the instance of Commandant Ali Mulla Khan and that the latter had agreed to pay and paid some money towards the maintenance charges of his lunatic brother. His present attitude in repudiating responsibility to pay up the dues is untenable.
